1. Introduction

The main text should be typed in Font Times New Roman, Size 12. No indention is needed for the first paragraph. One Tab of indention is used for the rest paragraphs. Line spacing should be 1.5 times. Also there should be no empty lines between paragraphs.

2. Theoretical Background

2.1 Definitions

If any information or opinion is someone else's copy right, you should give credit to the author (Smith, 2001). And in the end of the main text, a list of reference should include the details of this citation. Please do not use footnotes, or subscripts to label references. If the information you cited is not provided by a specific person, but an organization, the reference should still be treated the same way (World Bank, 2004). The name of organization will replace the last name of author. For Chinese names, please list the surname/family name of the author only (Liu，2005). And at the end of text, where you list all of your references, the author's full name should be given.

2.2 Theories

If you have charts, tables for illustration, please make sure that they must be self explaining (readers can understand them without reading the text). Each table should have table number, table title, and source of information. Each illustration (chart) should also have figure number, figure title, and source of data. All tables must be numbered numerically, so must the figures. Table title is on top of the table. Figure title is at the bottom of the figure. Table and figure are in separate order.
